DETAILED ACTION

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-14, drawn to a method for identifying markers of the locus of a major resistance gene to RYMV, classified in class 435, subclass 91.2, for example.
- II. Claims 15-24, 26, drawn to AFLP bands and DNA sequences, classified in class 536, subclass 23.6, for example.
- III. Claims 25, 27, and 28, drawn to use of polymorphous bands or nucleotide sequences to identify resistant phenotypes or to show polymorphisms between sensitive and resistant varieties or for identifying the sequences of the gene responsible for rice yellow mottle virus resistance, classified in class 435, subclass 6, for example.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I and II are related as process of making and product made. The inventions are distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) that the process as claimed can be used to make other and materially different product or (2) that the product as claimed can be made by another and materially different process (MPEP § 806.05(f)). In the instant case the product can be made by another process, such as shotgun cloning or chromosome walking. The nucleotide sequences of Group II can also be produced by chemical synthesis.

Inventions I and III are unrelated. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different modes of operation, different functions, or different effects (MPEP § 806.04, MPEP § 808.01). In the instant case the different inventions different functions and modes of operation. The methods of the two Groups require different starting materials, and involve different steps.

Inventions II and III are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case the nucleotide fragments of Group II can be used in a process to express them in vitro or in bacterial cells, for the purpose of further characterizing their encoded products.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and the search required for Group I is not required for Group II-III, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).

Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a request under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).
